

2027 Spring Semester
Application Guidelines – Doctoral Program

Department of Clinical Pharmacy
Graduate School of Pharmaceutical Sciences
Kyushu University

1. Admission Policy

The objectives of pharmaceutical sciences are to integrate and deepen sciences for materials and life, and systematically explore sciences related to the environment and the development and proper use of medicines for disease prevention and treatment in order to maintain and improve human health. The research achievements including the science technology and techniques would be contributing to people, so as to solve various problems in the 21st century in which the society is rapidly aging and people is surrounded by huge numbers of advanced knowledge. To achieve these objectives, the Graduate School of Pharmaceutical Sciences seeks to nurture capable human resources involved in research and education in the field of pharmaceutical sciences.

The Department of Clinical Pharmacy aims to promote research on the proper use of medicines and basic research on drug efficacy and safety evaluation, as well as to nurture competent researchers and educators in these fields. Particularly in fields related to the proper use of medicines, we seek to develop highly qualified pharmacists with outstanding leadership capabilities.
